The University of Toronto has initiated an 8-week design competition to re-imagine the major public open spaces of its St. George campus. As the centerpiece of the campus' outstanding collection of buildings and open spaces, this historic core should attract the best faculty and students, enhance the potential for planned and serendipitous learning, and facilitate interaction between all constituencies in the U of T community as part of their everyday activities.

We invite your feedback on the ideas generated by the four selected teams, either in person at our public presentation and exhibition, or through our website, landmark.utoronto.ca
